INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL SCIENCE JOURNAL

Vol. XLI, 1989
Nos. 119–122

SUBJECT AND AUTHOR INDEX

Subjects

Adjustment policies, Arab countries, crisis and, 223–234
Arab
  Countries, crisis and adjustment policies in, 223–234
  World and French Revolution 33–44
Bhopal puzzle, failure of modern technology, law and values 273–282
Britain and the United States, professional knowledge and state policy in comparative perspective 529–553
China, economic development and structural reform 189–201
Comparative perspective, professional knowledge and state policy in Britain and the United States 529–553
Concepts, theories, research programmes 607–615
Developing countries, environmental awareness among the most vulnerable communities in, 441–448
Development research, systematic evaluation, in Swiss, 471–483
Disciplinary society, Foucault and beyond, towards a theory of, 234–247
Division of labour, information costs and, 165–176
Documentation, information and knowledge creation, new policies for social science in the 1990s 105–114
Ecological modernization, industrial society and, 347–361
Ecology, global change of human, 315–345
Economic development, China's structural reform and, 189–201
Economic growth, industrialized countries and, 149–164
Environment, global impoverishment, sustainable development, and the, 375–397
Environmental awareness, vulnerable communities in developing countries and, 441–448
Europe, social science and the state in continental Western, 509–527
Evaluation, systemic in Swiss development research 471–483
Foucault and beyond, towards a theory of the disciplinary society 234–247
French Revolution
  Arab world and, 33–44
  Meiji Ishin and the, 45–52
  Muslim societies, the impact of the, 5–16
  Ottoman Empire, the influence of the, 17–31
  Soviet view on the humanistic ethic of the, 69–79
Global change
  Human action: psychological perspectives and, 413–432
  Human dimension of, 297–313
  Human ecology of, 315–345

INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL SCIENCE JOURNAL

Vol. XLI, 1989
Nos. 119–122

SUBJECT AND AUTHOR INDEX

Subjects

Adjustment policies, Arab countries, crisis and, 223–234
Arab
  Countries, crisis and adjustment policies in, 223–234
  World and French Revolution 33–44
Bhopal puzzle, failure of modern technology, law and values 273–282
Britain and the United States, professional knowledge and state policy in comparative perspective 529–553
China, economic development and structural reform 189–201
Comparative perspective, professional knowledge and state policy in Britain and the United States 529–553
Concepts, theories, research programmes 607–615
Developing countries, environmental awareness among the most vulnerable communities in, 441–448
Development research, systematic evaluation, in Swiss, 471–483
Disciplinary society, Foucault and beyond, towards a theory of, 234–247
Division of labour, information costs and, 165–176
Documentation, information and knowledge creation, new policies for social science in the 1990s 105–114
Ecological modernization, industrial society and, 347–361
Ecology, global change of human, 315–345
Economic development, China's structural reform and, 189–201
Economic growth, industrialized countries and, 149–164
Environment, global impoverishment, sustainable development, and the, 375–397
Environmental awareness, vulnerable communities in developing countries and, 441–448
Europe, social science and the state in continental Western, 509–527
Evaluation, systemic in Swiss development research 471–483
Foucault and beyond, towards a theory of the disciplinary society 234–247
French Revolution
  Arab world and, 33–44
  Meiji Ishin and the, 45–52
  Muslim societies, the impact of the, 5–16
  Ottoman Empire, the influence of the, 17–31
  Soviet view on the humanistic ethic of the, 69–79
Global change
  Human action: psychological perspectives and, 413–432
  Human dimension of, 297–313
  Human ecology of, 315–345

Industrial metabolism and, 363–373
Legal dimension of, 399–412
Science and technology policy and, 433–439
Growth
Constraints, current experience in Latin America 203–210
Industrialized countries and economic, 149–164
Macroeconomic policies in OECD 127–148
Human action, desertification of the Sahel and 449–456
Human rights, Unesco's practical action on, 585–594
Industrial countries, economic growth and, 149–164
Industrial society and ecological modernization 347–361
Information
Costs and division of labour 165–176
Documentation, knowledge creation, new policies for the social sciences in 1990s 105–114
Latin America, constraints to growth, current experience 203–210
Meiji Ishin, French Revolution and, 45–52
Modern technology, law and values, failure of, Bhopal puzzle, 273–281
Muslim societies, impact of the French Revolution 5–16
Nigeria, structural adjustment programmes, an appraisal 211–222
Noasphere, study of, contemporary humanism 595–606
OECD countries, growth and macroeconomic policies in, 127–148
Ottoman Empire, French Revolution, influence on, 17–31
Pakistan, social sciences in, 617–633
Professional knowledge and state policy in Britain and the United States, comparative perspective 529–553
Public policies, social sciences and, 555–566
Research programmes, concepts, theories, 607–615
Revolutions, Spanish-American, ironies of the, 53–67
Sahel, human action and desertification of, 449–456
Science of human systems, towards a new, 81–91
Science and technology policy, global change and, 433–439
Social science
Elements of creative, Part I: Towards greater authority for the knowledge base 567–583
State in continental Western Europe and, 509–527
State development and, transformation of discourse of modernity 497–507
Social sciences
Concepts, theories and research programmes according to, 607–615
Cultural boundaries in the 1990s: new policies for documentation, information and knowledge creation in, 105–114
Hybrid fields in the, 457–470
Pakistan: an evaluation 617–633
Public policies and, 555–566
Socialist economies, turning point of, 177–188
Soviet, the humanistic ethic of the French Revolution, view on, 69–79
Spanish-American Revolutions, ironies of the, 53–67
State policy, professional knowledge in Britain and United States 529–553
State and social science
Discourse of modernity, transformation of, 497–507
Political structuration of disciplinary discourse, in continental Western Europe 509–527
Structural adjustment programmes, in Nigeria 211–222
Structural reform, China's economic development and, 189–201
Swiss development research, systemic evaluation in, 471–483

Systemic evaluation, in Swiss development research 471–483
Theories, concepts, research programmes, 607–615
Unesco, practical action on human rights 585–594
United Nations, reforming the, 249–271
United States and Britain, professional knowledge and state policy in comparative perspective 529–553
Working-time, qualitative paradigm for, 93–104

Authors

ALLEN, Peter M. Towards a new science of human systems 81–91
AYRES, Robert U. Industrial metabolism and global change 363–373
BADIE, Bertrand. The impact of the French Revolution on Muslim societies: evidence and ambiguities 5–16
BOGOMOLOV, Oleg T. Socialist economies at the turning point 177–188
BREUER, Stefan. Foucault and beyond: towards a theory of the disciplinary society 234–247
BRITAIN, Michael J. Cultural boundaries of the social sciences in the 1990s: new policies for documentation, information and knowledge creation 105–114
BROWN WEISS, Edith. Legal dimensions of global change: a proposed research agenda 399–412
BURTON, Ian and TIMMERMAN, Peter. Human dimensions of global change – a review of responsibilities and opportunities 297–313
CASTRO LEIVA, Luis. The ironies of the Spanish-American Revolutions 53–67
CLARK, William C. The human ecology of global change 315–345
DOGAN, Mattei and PAHRE, Robert. Hybrid fields in the social sciences 457–470
DUMONT, Georges-Henri. Unesco's practical action on human rights 585–594
EKUERHARE, Bright U. and OBADAN, Michael I. The theoretical bases of structural adjustment programmes in Nigeria: an appraisal 211–222
FITOUSSI, Jean-Paul and LE CACHEUX, Jacques. Growth and macroeconomic policies in OECD countries 127–148
GAGNON, Alain-G. Social sciences and public policies 555–566
GALLOPIN, Gilberto C., GUTMAN, Pablo and MALETTA, Hector. Global impoverishment, sustainable development and the environment: a conceptual approach 375–397
GERSTLE, Jacques. Concepts, theories and research programmes 607–615
GUTMAN, Pablo, MALETTA, Hector and GALLOPIN, Gilberto C. Global impoverishment, sustainable development and the environment: a conceptual approach 375–397
HASSARD, John. A qualitative paradigm for working-time 93–104
HEIDENHEIMER, Arnold J. Professional knowledge and state policy in comparative historical perspective: law and medicine in Britain, Germany and the United States 529–553
HERMASSI, Elbaki. The French Revolution and the Arab world 33–44
INAYATULLAH. Social sciences in Pakistan: an evaluation 617–633

KASPRZYK, Lesjek. Science and technology policy and global change 433–439
KAWANO, Kenji. The French Revolution and the Meiji Ishin 45–52
KHARE, R.S. The Bhopal puzzle: a failure of modern technology, law and values 273–281
KLÄY, A., SEELAND, K., STÜRZINGER, U., WALDVOGEL, M. and MENZI, M. Systemic evaluation – a contribution to Swiss development research 471–483
KOVAL, Boris I. A Soviet view on the humanistic ethic of the French Revolution 69–79
LE CACHEUX, Jacques and FITOUSSI, Jean-Paul. Growth and macroeconomics policies in OECD countries 127–148
LEIJONHUFVUD, Axel. Information costs and the division of labour 165–176
LENGYEL, Peter. Elements of creative social science. Part I: Towards greater authority for the knowledge base 567–583
LO, Henri M. and SENE, Abdoulaye. Human action and the desertification of the Sahel 449–456
LOU, Yuanzheng. Structural reform and economic development in China 189–201
LYONS, Gene M. Reforming the United Nations 249–271
MADDUMA BANDARA, C.M. Environmental awareness among the most vulnerable communities in developing countries 441–448
MALETTA, Hector, GALLOPIN, Gilberto C. and GUTMAN, Pablo. Global impoverishment, sustainable development and the environment: a conceptual approach 375–397
MARDIN, Serif. The influence of the French Revolution on the Ottoman Empire 17–31
MENZI, M., KLÄY, A., SEELAND, K., STÜRZINGER, U. and WALDVOGEL, M. Systemic evaluation – a contribution to Swiss development research 471–483
MINFORD, Patrick. Economic growth in industrialized countries – problems and opportunities 149–164
MOISEEV, Nikita N. The study of the noasphere – contemporary humanism 595–606
OBADAN, Michael I. and EKUERHARE, Bright U. The theoretical bases of structural adjustment programmes in Nigeria: an appraisal 211–222
PAHRE, Robert and DOGAN, Mattei. Hybrid fields in the social sciences 457–470
SEELAND, K., STÜRZINGER, U., WALDVOGEL, M., MENZI, M. and KLÄY, A. Systemic evaluation – a contribution to Swiss development research 471–483
SENE, Abdoulaye and LO, Henri M. Human action and the desertification of the Sahel 449–456
SIMONIS, Udo E. Ecological modernization of industrial society: three strategic elements 347–361
SJÖBERG, Lennart. Global change and human action: psychological perspectives 413–432
STÜRZINGER, U., WALDVOGEL, M., MENZI, M., KLÄY, A. and SEELAND, K. Systemic evaluation – a contribution to Swiss development research 471–483
TIMMERMAN, Peter and BURTON, Ian. Human dimensions of global change – a review of responsibilities and opportunities 297–313
URQUIDI, Victor L. Constraints to growth in the developing world: current experience in

Latin America 203–210

WAGNER, Peter. Social science and the state in continental Western Europe: the political structuration of disciplinary discourses 509–527

WALDVOGEL, M., MENZI, M., KLÄY, A., SEELAND, K. and STÜRZINGER, U. Systemic evaluation – a contribution to Swiss development research 471–483

WITTROCK, Björn. Social science and state development: transformations of the discourse of modernity 497–507

YACHIR, Fayçal. Crisis and adjustment policies in Arab countries 223–234